

LEARNING FROM HOME

It certainly is a difficult time under current restrictions and I would like to say thank you to our parents and grandparents who all seem to be doing the best they can with our blended learning from home while we are in lockdown.

We all really appreciate your support and the open lines of communication with classroom teachers and through our office as required.

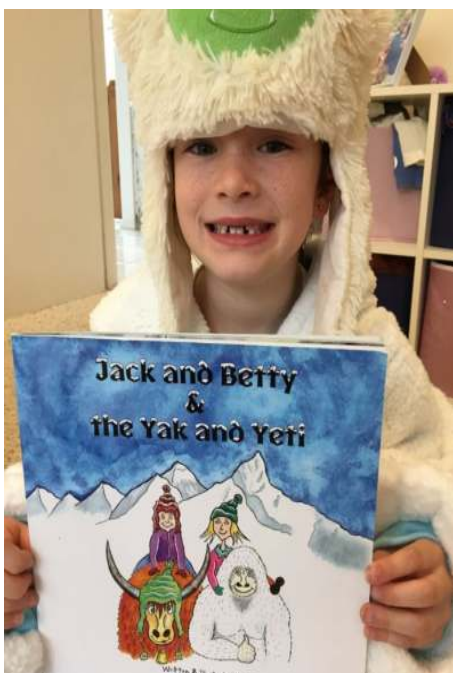

Please do not hesitate to connect with your teachers through class emails or with Mr Robinson via the telephone if you need to do so. It was nice for many of our teachers to be able to say hello to a large number of parents and kids who came to pick up their Learning from Home work packs.

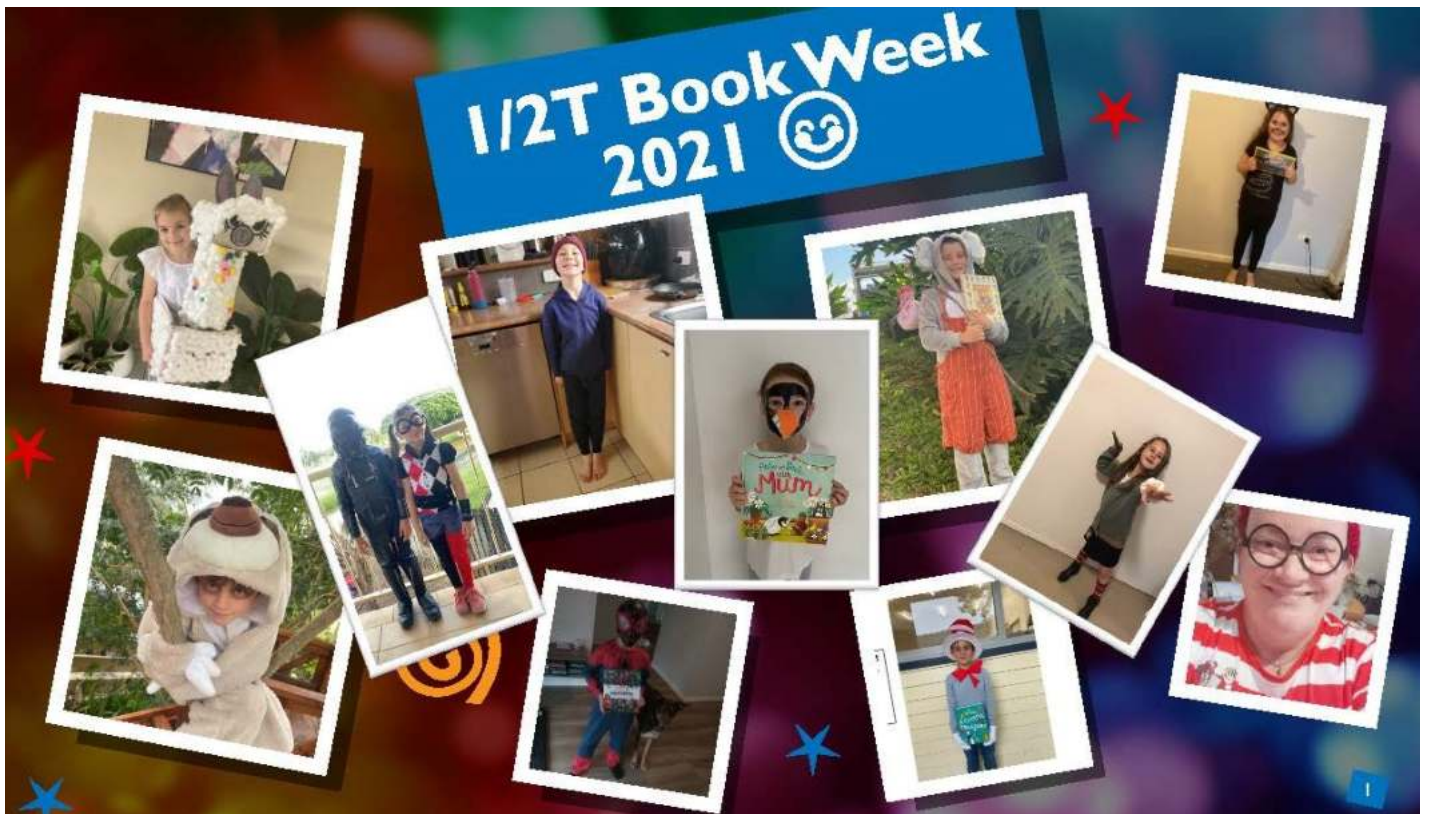

As you would have seen via the media and as reported by us through previous messaging, our current stay-at-home orders remain current up to the end of next week, due to hopefully end at midnight on Friday 10 September. What happens after this date is not completely clear at the moment, but please note that we will keep community updated as information is available, about next steps for us. Fingers crossed that we can be re-categorised to level 3 restrictions, which would see us return to face to face learning. Until then, we have to remain under current learning from home restrictions.

Please keep up the great work of staying connected to classroom teachers as you support your kids working from home. Work packs for next week will again be available for collection next Monday 6 September from our Kiss and Drop area between 8.30am to 10.30am and again between 12.30pm and 2.30pm. Outside of these hours, please visit our school office to collect student work packs.

As always, we thank our whole community for your support during this time. Our teachers are doing the best they can under current guidelines to continue to provide connections and support for you and your children.
